Czech nobility consists of the noble families of the historical lands of the Czech Republic. Namely Bohemian nobility, Moravian nobility and Silesian nobility are connected with the history of Duchy of Bohemia, later Kingdom of Bohemia, Margraviate of Moravia, the Duchies of Silesia and the Crown of Bohemia, the constitutional predecessor state of the modern-day Czech Republic. Aristocracy was abolished by law in December 1918, shortly after the establishment of the independent ...

Czech nobility - Wikipedia

Generally it is incorrect to translate German noble titles into foreign languages because the meaning is quite different. For instance the German title "Herzog" is translated as duke. Herzog is deriving from the old Germanic word "herizuogo," that is, the man who is riding in front of the army or the man who is commander of a tribe.
